Laura Kasischke's poems have the same haunting qualities and truth as our most potent memories and dreams. Through ghostly voices, fragmented narratives, overheard conversations, songs, and prayers in language reminiscent of medieval lyrics converted into contemporary idiom, the poems in Space, In Chains create a visceral strangeness true to its own music.

Space, in Chains, Laura Kasischke's eighth book of poetry, is a powerful and stripped collection that presents a picture of grief, less through proclamations and statements than through striking, disturbing and original imagery. While the individual poems mostly come off feeling gloriously bare-boned and raw, at 110 pages the collection itself at times can feel a bit overstuffed and redundant.

Laura Kasischke is the poet of surreal catalogues. The title poem of the present volume—"Space, in Chains"—for just one example, begins with a catalogue that reads like a list of categories from the television game show Family Feud: Things that are beautiful, and die. Things that fall asleep in the afternoon, in sun.
